

MULTIDISCIPLINARY STUDIES

Students pursuing a Bachelor of Arts in multidisciplinary humanities at Grenfell Campus, Memorial University, explore the process of intellectual discovery.

In this four-year degree program, you'll learn about how humans look at their own personal development by studying diverse topics including literature, philosophy, religion, history, fine arts, and indigenous studies

Why study multidisciplinary humanities at Grenfell

We ask big questions and look for connections. We study ideas and challenge conventions. We explore what it means to be human in an ever-changing world.

Grenfell's multidisciplinary humanities program is one of only five in Canada. We provide students with an intimate, supportive learning environment where our instructors challenge you to consider ideas from a variety of perspectives and cultural works, past and present. The multidisciplinary humanities program also encourages students to use critical thinking skills and creativity to express their ideas in effective ways. As a multidisciplinary humanities student, you have opportunities to win scholarships and awards.

Information for first-year students

In addition to the Multidisciplinary Humanities program requirements, Multidisciplinary Humanities majors will also complete an eight-credit minor in another subject. Minor programs are offered in areas including folklore, geography and art history.

Admission

You must meet the general admission requirements for Memorial University and declare Multidisciplinary Humanities as your major to be accepted to the program.

Courses and Program Requirements

<https://www.mun.ca/university-calendar/grenfell-campus/grenfell-campus/7/3/#7.3.3>

Career opportunities

How do you imagine your future? Law? Business? Medicine? Journalism? Academia? Technology? Multidisciplinary Humanities will help you get there. Graduates of the multidisciplinary humanities program have a wide variety of career opportunities, including jobs in the business sector, government jobs in policy analysis or program development, jobs in the non-profit sector.

Multidisciplinary humanities program graduates have unique skills that give them an advantage when searching for employment. These skills include seeing issues, problems and challenges from different angles, thinking outside of the box, developing creative solutions

Contact

Humanities Program Chair: Bernard Wills

GRENFELL
CAMPUS

bwills@mun.ca