Membership Categories

Research Member

Researchers with a focus on aging from a recognized academic institution (including full-time and part-time faculty, postdoctoral fellows, and academic staff) or employed by a health or community services institution with dedicated time for research are welcome to become Research Members of ARC-NL. Research Members shall normally have a doctoral degree or the terminal degree in their field, exceptions will be considered on a case by case basis. Research members are expected to promote the ARC-NL as well as acknowledge ARC-NL in all grant applications, publications, presentations, and interviews. ARC-NL Research Members support and actively participate in the Centre's activities and events which may include: peer-review of grant and fellowship applications, delivery of academic or plain-language talks, and participation in the Centre's annual meeting. Membership will be reviewed every two years.

Research Member Benefits

Networking: Access to ARC-NL newsletters; invitation to attend and participate in ARC-NL Annual Meetings; and frequent opportunities to share knowledge and participate in Research with a network of Researchers, health professionals, decision-makers, and community members across Newfoundland and Labrador.

Research Support: Access to lab facilities upon request; access to Participant Database for Researchers and their students; eligibility of Researchers and their students to apply for ARC-NL funding opportunities (please refer to specific calls for further eligibility criteria).

Knowledge Translation Platforms: Access to shared meeting facilities upon request; support for dissemination of Research to the public through the ARC-NL newsletter, organization of public presentations, on our website, social media, and through other avenues.
