Declaration of Medical Training, Clinical Practice AND Interruptions since Admission to Medical School

Medical Training includes, but is not limited to: senior house officer, registrar, internship, residency training etc.

Clinical Practice is active practice working as the most responsible physician.

Interruptions are any periods of time since graduation from medical school when an applicant has not been in medical training or clinical practice for two or more continuous months. Medical leave, awaiting Canadian Citizenship or Permanent Residency, observing, volunteering, clinical assisting, clinical fellowships, job shadowing, academic studies (EMT/paramedicine, nursing, doctorates, masters, degrees, diplomas, certificates - including graduate diplomas and other professional degrees in a medical science program), as well as training/educational experiences completed by individuals under an IMG assessment program, are considered interruptions.

Please list in chronological order.

I declare the following periods of medical training and clinical practice, and all interruptions to such, since admission to medical school:
